

Structured Content Management Solutions

Custom integration services help you get the most from your structured content management implementation.

To more efficiently author and distribute information, companies are turning to structured content management systems. Usually XML-based, these systems change the way organizations create, manage and disseminate information. A well-architected system can improve documentation accuracy, streamline content re-use, increase speed-to-market, reduce labor costs, and more. Moving to a content management solution can seem daunting, but it doesn't have to be. Incremental solutions can help you get started, provide immediate ROI, and start working toward a long-term strategy. With Rite-Solutions as your solution architect, you will:

- Leverage decades of experience in business case development, process design, systems integration, software engineering, and end-user performance to enable a more efficient content lifecycle.
- Create the ideal system that fits your needs and budget. As a vendor-agnostic software and systems engineering firm, Rite-Solutions can integrate legacy systems with third-party software or develop custom systems that are unique to your business.

Your full-service content management integration partner, from requirements gathering to rollout.

Rite-Solutions has the advisory services and systems engineering expertise to guide your structured content management implementation every step of the way. - Identify and evaluate user stories, develop system requirements, information architecture, and human centered UI/UX design to support stated business needs.
- Identify stakeholders, workflow and supporting business processes across the content continuum that are required for a successful implementation.
- Implement your structured content solution, and migrate legacy data.
- Evaluate third-party systems, legacy systems, and existing content strategies to determine the most cost-effective approach for your organization.
- Provide change management, messaging and training on authoring content, managing content objects within a CCMS and publishing learning and technical documentation with the DITA Open Toolkit.
- Access performance support information and feedback from the field to ensure there is a mechanism for capturing and evaluating best practices.
